OLD ENGLISH CAROL

From far away we come to you.

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
To tell of great tidings, strange and true.*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.

From far away we come to you,

To tell of great tidings, strange and true.

Under a bent when the night was deep,

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
There lay three shepherds, tending their sheep.*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.

“O ye shepherds, what have ye seen,

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
To stay your sorrow and heal your teen?”*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.

“In an ox stall this night we saw; . . .

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
A Babe and a maid without a flaw.*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.

“And a marvellous song we straight did hear; . . .

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
That slew our sorrow and healed our care.”*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.

News of a fair and a marvellous thing,

*The snow in the street, and the wind on the door,
Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, we sing.*

Minstrels and maids, stand forth on the floor.
